

CHARITY SHIELD 2015

New Town Eagles Football Club in partnership with Beachside FC have joined local charity Speak Up Stay ChatTy – to raise awareness on youth suicide, to their players, members and supporters.

Speak Up Stay ChatTy was founded by Mitch McPherson who lost his brother to suicide in recent years. What started out as bumper stickers to help him and his family with the grieving process, has now become Mitch's full time position working closely with Relationships Australia.

After speaking with Mitch and chatting about his vision on raising awareness about youth suicide, New Town Eagles decided that this was a topic that hit a chord within our club, so we approached Beachside FC who were straight away happy to join our efforts.

Mitch will be coming along to both clubs to share his experiences and to help raise awareness on the signs of youth suicide and the importance of "Speaking Up"
